You expect more of the FLANNELS than you do of the ordinary run of dry goods. Do you realize that? You expect them to hunder nicely whenever a whim strikes you to "refresh" them. Just think how securely the colors must be imbedded to stand the rubbing and scrubbing of the washerwomen. Yet you look for the same tender shading—the same delicate expressions as are in the goods that never "dip the water." It is a trick of science—but you get in them all you could ask, and this season double the variety—improved at that—you have ever had.

It does seem as if the French and Scotch were continually at it. Every day finds a new favor forming—the latest—and it is here—is a batch of FLANNEL STRIPES and SPOTS cutely arransed. Fifty all told, maybe. We have simply put them in with the others. The old prices rule them all—dic, for 27-inch wide goods.

An odd thing comes over from Scotland. They call it Flannelette. Certainly is as good's name as any. Seemed to so completely fill a "want niche" that we secured the entire control of it for these parts. Pretty for dresses, shirt waists, blomes and children's wear-anywhere that more than an ordinary amount of hard knocks are likely is the place. You make a mistake if you think it is course. French Challfs is not finer. Stripes or Plaids in silk—75c.—30 inches wide. "CEYLON" is an annual—50c.—30 inches.

For a broad unbroken surface of handsome coloring look up the plain FRENCH FLANNELS. New tints re-established them in high favor. 27 inches wide-SILK WRAPS, SUITINGS, DOMETS and the LIGHT WEIGHTS-the regular staples-plenty of

Get all the FLANNELS and the CHALLIS together and our department is about as full as it can be. Goodness, but how these fabries have multi-lied in puttern. If you had seen the stacks and stacks of sample cords of CHALLIS that have been piled up before us you would wonder how in the world we ever managed to sift out the beauties. It is experience that does that. The first pattern is the pretties; until we see something prettier—we work the chaff out in that way. Ten pieces of LIGHT and DARK GROUNDS are all

You must not forget that all these novelties get into Washingston solely under our patronage—and don't show their faces behind anybody eise's counters.

These are among the class of goods that the tariff was expected to effect. It undoubtedly has, and compare prices and you can see how much. OURS ARE THE SAME AS THEY HAVE BEEN FOR SOME SEASONS. Quite a feather in our cap. You won't retuse the advantage—any of you. the advantage—any of you.

SPECIAL MARK DOWN SALE OF POPULAR MAKES OF CORSETS.

It is ridiculous and absurd for any merchant to advertise that they never have any solided goods, for such a thing would be impossible. Common sense will teach any one that in showing goods, especially white goods of any kind, to dozens and hundreds of customers a day they are bound to become somewhat soiled. Take for an instance CORSETS; the customer may have on black gloves; if she has and she takes hold of the cornet, which she is very apt to do, it will invariably leave a small spot, or dust may have gotten on the counter or the customer may have put her umbrella on the counter without thinking that it was wet. The corset comes in contact with it; result, a soiled place. These solled places are generally very small, but the sale of the corset is hurt by them. Now what we propose to do is never to allow a small, but the sale of the corset is hurt by them. Now what we propose to do is never to allow a corset to be offered to a customer that is solied in the slightest; we lay all such aside and when there is enough we MARK THEM WAY DOWN and advertise them and you may be sure that when a good and popular corset, only slightly solled, is sold for such low price they are very soon grabbed up by bargain seekers.

Sr. Louis, Feb. 21.—The last taps have been sounded, the buglers have trumpeted forth a final farewell, and William Tecumseh Sherman sleeps with his kindred. Only the fresh-turned earth on a mound in Calvary cemetery, just where the walk of the Holy Rosary and the Way of Bethany come together, tells the story that the last of that great triumvirate of American generals whose fame is as imperishable as the nation itself has been is id to rest between the devoted helpmate who, antil called away, smoothed and comforted his declining years and "Little Willie," his idolized soldier lad. The pageant, the final service, the grave, all were in harmony with the man. The one imposing, as was his career, the second simple to severity, as was his life and habits, the third with nothing but a fringe of shrubbery to separate it from those of the comrades and veterans with whom Old Tecumseh had loved to mingle. Gen. Sherman's desire that his obsequies should be of a military character was obeyed to the most extreme particular. But, at the same time, it was found impossible to draw a hard and fast line that would prohibit the great mass of the people of the city in which he had spent so many years of his life, and who at one time regarded him as its particular own, from paying a last tribute of respect to his memory. But, at the same time, it was found impossible to draw a hard and fast line that would prohibit the great mass of the people of the city in which he had spent so many years of his life, and who at one time regarded him as its particular own, from paying a last tribute of respect to his memory. So, something almost without precedent in a strictly military functainty without precedent in a strictly military functainty without precedent in a strictly military functainty. The strict of the event.

As the faint light of early morning crept over the fillinois prairies, bringing into relief the outlines of the crape-covered functal train, asolitary figure stood in front of a little pine cabin near the railroad track, musket in hand, and waited for its coming. And the watcher by the casket of the dead general saw the bent figure beside the track straighten up as the train as weep by and the old army musket come to a present arms. It was the last tribute of the veteran to his old commander—the first tribute of respect that ushered in the morning of Gen. Sherman's funcral day. The train which bore the casket, the mourners and the military secorit ran at a slow rate of speed all night.

At Terre Hauten stop was made at 1 o'clock. Cannon were booming and there was an assemblage of several hundred people. The train remained at the station until those had an opportunity to view the casket. Then it ran out into the railroad vards, where it remained for an hour and a half. The rest of the run during the night was uneventral and it was 6.30 o'clock when the first demonstration occurred. The train stopped for a few minutes at Vandalia, where the local Grand Army post was drawn up in double column on the platform. A musket salute was fired over the funcral car as the train left the station.

As the train stopped the bugler sounded "Taps." The veterans wheeled into line and with heads bared marched past the function of the same of the sam SARSAPARILLA vandana and East St. Louis, but at several of the smaller stations little groups of people had gathered to watch the passage of the train. At one of the cross roads a horseman, his steed flecked with foam, stood outlined against the gray of the horizon and waved an old slouched hat at the passing train. The picturesqueness of the figure attracted the attention of the party and they gazed back at it as long as it was in sight.

Louis Mr. and Mrs. Thackara, Miss Rache Sherman and P.T. Sherman went forward to the combination car and discussed with Maj. Randolph some of the arrangements for the procession. The arrangement of the pall upon the general's horse to be led behind the catafalque had been under discussion yesterday, as the family were anxious that the general's saddle should not be concealed from view. DECEIVING WASHINGTON MERCHANTS alture of an Attempt to Array Them Against

AT REST IN CALVARY.

The adjourned meeting of merchants to hear the report of Messrs. Lisner, Lothrop and Leidy, the committee appointed a week ago to call upon the newspaper publishers in relation to an alleged discrimination by the advertising department against Washington merchants, was held last night.

Mr. Lothrop read a report sizeed by Mr. Lothrop read a report size of the City November 1.

was held last night.

Mr. Lothrop read a report signed by Mr. Liener as chairman of the committee briefly stating that the committee had performed its duty and recommending that the whole matter be dropped. Mr. Lothrop supplemented the report by a more detailed statement of the interviews with the newspaper publishers and the information obtained from other sources about advertising. They had found, he said, the merchants had been betrayed into a mistake in the matter by misjending statements and that the truff of the case was exactly the reverse of what had been stated to the merchants. After their interviews with the publishers the matter was put in an entirely different light. It had been represented to the merchants that the papers of Baltimore would not insert for Washington merchants advertisements of the character that had been published in Washington by a Baltimore firm. This the committee had found upon inquiry to be untrue. He believed the advertisements, and in doing so did what was customary in every city.

He was convinced that both The Stan and the other papers here way advance the interests of all in their power to advance the interests.

He was convinced that both THE STAB and the other papers here were determined to do all in their power to advance the interests of Washington.

Mr. Leidy seconded what Mr. Lothrop mid, and stated he was thoroughly convinced that they had made a mistake in the matter.

Several speeches were made during the short session held, and all of them were stronely tinged with indignation against what seemed to have been an effort on the part of the publishers of a weekly sheet to prejudice business men against the daily papers by deceptive statements.

One of the men connected with the weekly in question insisted that his statements had been correct in saying a certain Bultimore paper would not insert an advertisement of the character published in a Washington paper because it would not use the kind of type used in the Washington paper.

Mr. George Topham declared this statement as mere quibbling. It had not been the type, but the wording of the advertisements that had been in question.
